OIL KING'S ASSOCIATES CALLED TO PLEAD TO NEW HAVEN INDICTMENTS

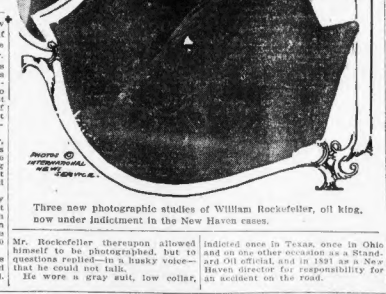
NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—Three associates of William Rockefeller in his dealings with the New Haven were expected to face the court today and plead to the indictments of last Monday, which named Rockefeller and others as conspirators to restrain interstate commerce. The three—last of the defendants named in the indictment—are T. DeWitt Cuyler, James S. Elton and Charles F. Brooker.

All New York is talking today of Mr. Rockefeller's own appearance in court. It is some time since Mr. Rockefeller has made any public appearance; and more than once recently inquiries—by Congressional committees and the like—have elicited the information that Mr. Rockefeller was in most precarious health.

How Rockefeller looks on the street.

Rockefeller pleads not guilty.

Rockefeller hears his lawyer argue.



Three new photographic studies of William Rockefeller, oil king, now under indictment in the New Haven cases.

The doctors said only a few months ago that even the strain of answering a few questions on the witness stand might bring upon Mr. Rockefeller a fatal illness, and he was not required to testify. A few months before that, when the Pujo investigators went to Jekyll Island to try to question Mr. Rockefeller, their first inquiries brought on an attack of coughing on Mr. Rockefeller's part which forced them to abandon the examination.

Mr. Rockefeller yesterday, however, seemed fairly vigorous. It is true his voice was husky, and likewise true that there was a nervous twitching of his eyes and mouth at times, but aside from these matters he seemed perfectly well.

He had hoped to escape publicity in pleading to the indictment against him. For this purpose it was given out that he would appear at 2:30 in the afternoon, and instead of that he arrived at the court building at 10:30 in the morning.

But—strangely enough—reporters and photographers had anticipated some such move and were on hand.

Mr. Rockefeller thereupon allowed himself to be photographed, but to questions replied—in a husky voice—that he could not talk.

He wore a gray suit, low collar, black tie and diamond pin. His overcoat was black, his derby was of the flat-top type, and he carried a slender malacca stick. His color was good, and his carriage vigorous. It was given out that he would leave almost at once for a long rest on Jekyll Island, off the southern coast.

After Mr. Rockefeller arrived at the court building, there was a wait of about twenty minutes beofre the Judge arrived.

Rising as the Judge entered the court, Mr. Rockefeller, with a slight nervous twitching of his eyes and mouth, faced Clerk Leary. There was no time to summon William Rockefeller to the bar. Leary got as far as "Mr. Rockefeller"—when Attorney Garver interposed and announced his client was there.

"Do you waive the formal reading of the indictment?" he was asked. Mr. Rockefeller bowed.

"How do you plead to this indictment which charges you with conspiracy to monopolize interstate commerce?"

"Not guilty, your honor," came the reply in a very husky voice.

Bail for him was furnished by a surety company. It was recalled that this is the fifth time Mr. Rockefeller has been under indictment. He was indicted once in Texas, once in Ohio and on one other occasion as a Standard Oil official, and in 1891 as a New Haven director for responsibility for an accident on the road.

Danes Protest Closing of North Sea by British

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 6.—Denmark has protested to Great Britain that if the English Admiralty's order closing the North Sea to shipping is closely adhered to it will injure Danish commercial interests greatly by cutting off communication by water with America, Iceland and the Faroe Islands, besides destroying the livelihood of the Danish fishermen.

This is the first protest that has been made by a neutral country against the British action.

Dr. Henry Gannett Dead in Washington

Deny Writ to Hold Ring Given to Girl

Nathan Kaplan, a tailor, with a shop at No. 34 School street, will have to fight to secure the return of his $175 diamond ring from Miss Nellie Resnick of No. 12 Sea Foam avenue, Revere Beach, according to a ruling of Judge Wait today, which denied Kaplan's motion for an injunction to prevent Miss Resnick from disposing of the property in dispute.

Denies That Crown Prince Is Wounded

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 6.—Count von Brockdorff Rantzau, the German Minister, today denied reports that Crown Prince Frederick William and Prince Albert of Germany had been wounded, and declared that both were in the best of health.

Two British Ships Seized by Turks

LIVERPOOL, Nov. 6.—Local shippers received a report today that the Ellerman Lines Assiout and City of Olivine had been seized by the Turks at Smyrna. Both are British ships.

Storstad's Chief Engineer Drowned

MONTREAL, Nov. 6.—Peter Johnson, chief engineer of the Storstad at the time that vessel sank the Empress of Ireland off Father Point, was drowned in the St. Lawrence today.

THOUSANDS BET ON BIG GAME

By AL.

The big, undefeated Princeton football team is here, ready for the contest with the Crimson eleven at the Stadium tomorrow. Every train is pouring hundreds of ~~rooters down to~~ to Boston and the city has gone football crazy.

Here, there and everywhere there is little but debate and discussion about the chances of the contenders in the "big" Boston football game of the year.

The hotels are rapidly filling up and by tonight desirable rooms anywhere in Boston are sure to be scarce.

Hundreds of football lovers, anxious to get an advance view of the invaders of the Stadium, journeyed out to Cambridge this afternoon and watched the Tiger backfield stars practice punting and drop kicking.

BETTING IS BRISK.

Betting is very brisk, with Harvard a favorite, generally at 10 to 7, though the influx of Princeton students and "grads" is having a tendency to make the rates nearer even money.

A special trainload of Princeton students followed the team into the city and went out to the Copley Square Hotel, which will be the official headquarters of the jungle outfit till it is time to start for the Stadium tomorrow.

Except the backs, the Tiger players were given a day of complete rest, as the long practice season they were put through yesterday, before leaving for Boston, was considered sufficient polishing off by Coach Eddie Hart.

Princeton men are confident that their eleven will win from Harvard as it did from Dartmouth. They are backing their convictions with real money, and it would not be surprising if that when the Tiger steamer boat reaches here the betting will shift to odds of 10 to 8 and possibly in to 5, with Harvard on the long end.

TEAMS EVENLY MATCHED.

As this is the off year on the Yale proposition, all the fans and feathers that although a "Yale game" on the "on" year will be on display.

Two teams both in perfect condition and both keyed and waiting

Kaiser Internes British in Germany

BERLIN, via Amsterdam, Nov. 6.—The German government has ordered all British subjects of military age interned in the camp at Ruhleben. It is stated that this action was taken because the British government vouchsafed no reply to Germany's request for the release of able-bodied Germans interned in England.

Germans Admit Loss of Yorcke

BERLIN, via Amsterdam, Nov. 6.—An official report to the Admiralty states that the German cruiser Yorcke was sunk off the North Sea coast by accidentally striking a German mine. Three hundred and eighty-four of the crew, including the commander and navigating officer, were rescued, but 266 are still missing and are believed to have drowned.

"Public Safe From Danger of Cattle Plague"—Armour

The public is assured that there is no danger from meat consumption as a result of the hoof and mouth disease, now epidemic among American cattle. J. Ogden Armour issued a statement today as follows:

"Meat eaters need have no fear from the disease. No particle of meat from an infected animal is used, even for soap, fertilizer or leather. Every such animal is shot and buried in quicklime at once. Government inspectors have examined carefully every bit of meat sold by the packers, and they have been doubly watchful for a week. The disease is detected quickly and there is not one chance for harm or deterioration to any meat sold."

Rescuers Discover Blazing Steamship Was Only the Moon

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—There's a big passenger ship on fire off Diversey Boulevard," came in breathless tones over the telephone in the Sheffield avenue police station early today.

"Send help at once."

A police motor boat put off at full speed accompanied by life-savers under Captain Ireland. Far out on the bosom of Lake Michigan a dull glare could be seen and one of the lifesavers declared that he could see men and women leaping into the water.

The prows of the two-ship boats cut through the lake waters for half an hour and the fire seemed farther away than when they started. Suddenly in the middle of the crimson glow the rim of the moon appeared. Captain Ireland is looking for the excited citizen who sent life-savers and policemen on a wild chase to "put out the moon."

Repair Pacific Cable Cut by Germans

VANCOUVER, B. C., Nov. 6.—The Pacific cable which connects Canada with Australia was reopened today. It was put out of business September 7, when the German cruiser Nurnberg sailed up to the Fanning Island station and poisoned the wild chase to "put out the moon."

German Victory on Sea Doubted

LIMA, Peru, Nov. 6.—Private advices from Valparaiso say that the British flagship Good Hope did not participate in the naval battle off the Chilean coast. The Glasgow is reported to be at Port Montt but the Monmouth is not accounted for. A German victory is generally discredited.

Heavy Cannonade Heard at Dover

DOVER, England, Nov. 6.—Very heavy cannonading, apparently on the Belgian coast or in the North Sea, was heard here today.

TURKS BOMBARD BLACK SEA PORT; LILLE BURNING

With Emperor William personally directing the operations of his army, the Germans are today engaged in the supreme effort of the campaign in Belgium, a dash for the English Channel coast. Beaten back time and again by the allies with terrific losses, the Kaiser is determined to take the French ports of Calais and Dunkirk, whatever the cost, and the attack has been resumed with redoubled fury, according to today's advices from London, Paris and Amsterdam. Heavy German guns have been brought up to the battle line and are battering the town of Arras.

At the same time the Turco-Russian campaign is proceeding with vigor. An official dispatch from Constantinople states that the Turkish fleet has bombarded Batoum, the chief Russian port of Trans-Caucasia, on the Black Sea, and caused great damage. Turkish naval authorities have seized thirty-six French merchant vessels in the harbor of Constantinople.

RUSSIANS SINK TEN SHIPS

The Russian admiralty announced today that ten Turkish and German vessels carrying coal for the Ottoman navy had been sunk in the Black Sea off the northern coast of Asiatic Turkey by Russian warships. The War Office at the same time issued a statement declaring that the Russian troops of Trans-Caucasia, continuing their advance in Turkish territory, were approaching Erzerum, the principal city of Turkish Armenia.

Because of the defeat of the German forces in Poland, the Austrians in Galicia have been compelled to retreat toward the west, according to an official announcement from Petrograd.

A dispatch from Sluis to the Amsterdam Telegraaf states that the Germans retreating from the Yser in Belgium have fallen back to Bruges and that a battle is now raging about Dixmude, Roulers and Ypres.

A correspondent of the London Times states that the main fighting now centres around Armentieres and on the frontier a short distance east of Nieppe, a little town on the River Lys. He continues:

"Lille is burning and battered. The allies have been in and out of the city and our shells set the town alight at the western end. If we cannot hound the enemy out, we must drive him toward Flanders with flame and smoke.

"It is reported that Emperor William with his staff is directing the whirlwind campaign from Tournai, Belgium, with Bologne and Calais as the objective, via Hazebrouck and Stomer, where, if the Germans can break through, there is a clear road to the coast. The battle here will not be decided for several days."

DASH FOR COAST IN STRAIGHT LINE

The Germans are trying to drive through to the channel coast in a straight line from a point north of Arras, and sever the main line of communication supplying the French, British and Belgian forces in the northern sphere of action, according to French army officers arriving in Paris today from the front. The object of the massing of German troops north of Arras was the first step in this last effort of the invaders to penetrate to the coast. If they are able to break through the allies' line northwest of Arras, the Germans will not only have attained the coast, but they will have cut off the supply line of the French, British and Belgian troops,

The Wilson Policies Bring Democratic Disaster

The voters of the United States on Tuesday with convincing emphasis and force expressed their condemnation of the Wilson administration and the Wilson policies.

It is no unusual thing for an administration, especially one responsible for a tariff law, to fail to hold in its second year the popular support that carried it into office. But never before has the expression of popular disapproval been so unmistakable.

The campaign culminating in Tuesday's election was fought throughout the nation on the slogan "Stand by the President." When the Democrats issued their campaign textbook they headed it "Thank God for Wilson!" Though intended to aid the election of Congressmen, the greater part of the book was given over to the President's utterances. The precise extent to which the Democratic majority in Congress has been reduced is not at this moment certain. The loss, however, as a result of this species of argument is heavy.

GOVERNOR WALSH SAVED HIMSELF FROM BEING SUBMERGED BY THE WEIGHT OF PRESIDENT WILSON'S BREACHES OF PARTY FAITH BY REPUDIATING THEM AND INSISTING UPON MAKING THE APPEAL TO THE CITIZENS OF MASSACHUSETTS UPON HIS OWN MASSACHUSETTS RECORD. THAT RECORD WAS GOOD AND WAS WELL REWARDED BY HIS FELLOW CITIZENS.

But in every State where the President had his personal representatives running for office there was Democratic disaster.

In Pennsylvania he aided with a personal letter the Senatorial ambitions of A. Mitchell Palmer. Mr. Palmer's defeat is so overwhelming as to make his candidacy appear grotesque.

In Illinois the personal representative of the President, campaigning as the "original Wilson man," was Roger C. Sullivan. Sullivan is beaten by a stand-pat Republican.

In Connecticut the Democratic nominee, Governor Simeon E. Baldwin, possessed in the fullest degree the President's support, and is himself a man of great personal force and popularity. Governor Baldwin goes down with the national leader he blindly followed.

In the New York Senatorial contest Ambassador Gerard, a Wilson appointee, received the fullest administration support. High personal character, a magnificent record in his difficult post at Berlin availed him nothing. He went down to defeat on the one single issue of his affiliation with the national administration.

The New York contest for the governorship followed the rule established over the country. In point of personal fitness for the office there was little choice between the candidates. Each has been an admirable public servant in the office he holds today. But the voters clearly swept away all the confusing issues involved and voted down Governor Glynn in token of disapproval of his party as now nationally led.

In November, 1912, the voters of the United States elected Woodrow Wilson President upon a platform which appealed to them, and which they took seriously. The nominee, it later appeared, did not.

In November, 1914, they were asked to express their approval of the way in which that platform had been given effect.

They remembered that that platform promised a tariff revision that would "not injure nor destroy legitimate industry."

BUT THE TARIFF LAW ENACTED STRUCK DOWN AMERICAN INDUSTRY, FAILED TO PRODUCE NEEDED REVENUE, AND OPENED NO NEW MARKETS FOR OUR TRADE.

The platform favored "the exemption from tolls of American ships engaged in coastwise trade passing through the Panama Canal."

BUT THE PRESIDENT FORCED CONGRESS TO LEVY A TAX ON OUR SHIPS EQUAL TO THAT ON BRITISH OR OTHER FOREIGN SHIPS.

The platform promised protection for American citizens abroad.

The administration elected on that platform HAS FAILED TO PROTECT AMERICANS ANYWHERE, AND FLATLY REFUSED TO PROTECT THEM IN MEXICO, WHERE AMERICAN CITIZENS HAVE BEEN ROBBED AND MURDERED BY HUNDREDS.

The platform promised an adequate navy. The Democratic party, dominated from the White House, HAS STARVED THE NAVY TO THE POINT OF DANGEROUS WEAKNESS.

The platform promised to foster our merchant marine. THE PRESIDENT, BY EXECUTIVE ORDER, PROHIBITED THE ENFORCEMENT OF THAT PART OF THE TARIFF LAW WHICH, BY GRANTING PREFERENTIAL DUTIES TO IMPORTS IN AMERICAN BOTTOMS, STROVE TO GIVE EFFECT TO THIS PLEDGE.

But enough. The Democratic party went to the people asking them to vote candidates into office as an evidence of approval of the Wilson administration. THE VOTERS LOOKED UP THE RECORD. THEY FOUND IT ONE OF FLAT AND BRAZEN VIOLATION OF PLATFORM PLEDGES.

In just and proper resentment they have refused the vote of confidence asked, and the more closely the candidate was identified with the Administration of Broken Pledges the more unmistakable has been his defeat.

War's Menace to Royalty

How much of new republicanism is likely to come to Europe out of this war?

France is, of course, already a republic. Her soldiers suffering and dying in the field; her civilians—mostly women—sorrowing and suffering at home, will have only elected officials to hold responsible for their place in the murderous madness.

Holding, as the whole nation does, that the war was forced upon them by the most prominent champion of the "divine right of kings" in all Europe, the French will not be swerved from their republicanism by the shock of war.

England, practically a republic already, in many respects more democratic than the United States, is in much the same position as France, as, too, is Belgium.

Yet it will be amazing if in both of these countries secret diplomacy, at least—a dangerous relic of personal and royal government that has outlived royalty itself—shall not be amended, if not abolished.

Russia, Austria-Hungary and Germany are at war because of the power and the policies of their reigning monarchs. This fact is not gainsaid by the equally unquestioned truth that at the moment the heart of the whole German people is in the war. But should the issue prove unfavorable or the suffering unbearable, even among the loyal Germans there may be revolt against the power that led on to disaster.

It is necessarily in these three empires that the course of representative government and republican institutions must be advanced by war, if it is to be advanced at all. People think bitterly and radically in the moments following a war. The Third Empire in France gave way to the Republic and narrowly escaped the Commune as the fruit of the people's reaction against dominant militarism. Before complete calm settles again over Europe, forces which will dwarf even the Kaiser's famous howitzers will be loosed, and not merely the map but the political methods of that continent will be radically changed.

GLYNN'S DEBT TO THE PRESIDENT

If the New York Democrats carry the State next Tuesday, they may thank Woodrow Wilson.

Letters from American Readers

KEEP UP PROSPERITY TALK

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—I think your editorial, "Forces of Prosperity Rapidly Mobilizing," the best encouragement we have seen in any journal for months past. Statements like these are worth their weight in gold, and continue through your great paper will be a great boon to trade, as you reach so many people in all walks of life. Keep up your good work and other papers will follow, bringing us within the next few months an era of genuine prosperity.

"SHOP EARLY"

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—As a constant reader of your paper I would like to ask, when you make your usual "the early Christmas shopping early" appeal to the public, that you also mention the small stores, such as butchers and grocers. These people work early and late every day in the year, not only Christmas time, and there is never an appeal made for them.

THOUGH chaos and confusion
Upon the earth I see,
Yet still they seem illusion
Unto the soul of me.
Though race with race is striving
And conflicts do not cease,
I feel that right is thriving—
I hear the voice of Peace.

I know the wrongs existing
And growing hour by hour,
And yet my faith, persisting,
Sees justice high in power;
I hear the voice of Reason
Enumerating ills;
But doubt of God seems treason,
And trust my bosom thrills.

Though nation wars with nation,
And men in darkness grope,
A curious exultation
Gives pinions to my hope.
Though sorrows and disasters
Descend upon our sphere,
My faith in wisdom masters
All sentiments of fear.

Along this world benighted
Where clouds and shadows roll,
One narrow path is lighted
For each immortal soul.
The path of Love's endeavor,
To show the God within,
And who walks there will never
Be slave of fear or sin.

Mine is the mind of woman,
No logic in its store;
But, ah! my heart is human
And love is at its core.
The earth is God's expansion,
And love is all it needs,
And this is faith's confession
Of what it lacks in creeds.

"Take it away from me, if I had my life to live it over again, I would never be born. The only thing to think about is money, and what's the good of it, anyway? If you save it you're a miser; if you spend it you're a spendthrift; if you steal it you're a thief; if you give it up you're a sucker."

All of which is a little philosophy which is continued at length in the City Life section of next Sunday's Boston AMERICAN.

JURY CHARGED IN FIGHT OVER EMERY WILL

Judge Pressman in the Suffolk Superior Court charged the jury today in the case that will entail what has promised the unusual spectacle of a son, as lawyer and contestant, arguing against the validity of his father's will on his father's own behalf, as lawyer but not judge, too, on the ground that the father was "non-sane."

The father, whose will is being contested, was Samuel W. Emery of Boston and Portsmouth, N. H. After being divorced by his first wife, Caroline, he had a son and two daughters, re-married a second time. At death he left the bulk of his $50,000 estate to the second wife.

The son and two daughters by the first wife are the contestants. The son is Samuel B. Emery, named for his father and grandfather. He and his father did Attorney Emery, as counsel for himself and his sisters, made his address to the jury in the personal as possible. He alluded to his father as "Mr. Emery" and to himself as "the son."

In the other delicate position of attacking his father's will, aside not reflecting on his father personally, Attorney Emery said to the jury:

"There was a will drawn in Mr. Emery's makeup. He was easily influenced. It is for you to say whether he would have disinherited his children if he hadn't been influenced. There is no evidence he loved his children. The evidence showed he didn't speak to them when with his second wife in the room, but there is evidence he did speak to them when in her room without her."

"This isn't a natural will. Then why did he do it? Because of the second wife and her relatives, who came to him with nothing and were supported by him for years.

"As to those letters. You know he couldn't have written such letters if he hadn't had under a spell. No man would. Did she tell him to look out for his children? No. She was looking for a home. And so from nothing she went into a sixteen-room house and estate of fourteen acres and got money of $500 a year. While she was getting sometimes $1,000 a year pin money his first wife and children were living on less than that.

"Mr. Emery did cease when he refused to speak to his children when he met them on the street. We don't come into court to tell our father's will as that of a bad man, but as the will of a weak man, made while he was under a spell.

"He wanted his son to go college, once he'd got the money. He is not try raised for the money back. He said they'd found it out and lock out to hurt. He wanted to help his children but he was weak. God knows how weak, in that particular way."

HOPE FOR LITTLE WINTHROP GIRL STRUCK BY AUTO

Grace McCarthy, nine-year-old girl, who is suffering from injuries received when she was hit by auto in Winthrop.

Children in the Winthrop street neighborhood of Winthrop made constant inquiries before and after school today for their playmate, Grace McCarthy, nine years old. Grace is in the Metcalf Hospital, suffering from concussion of the brain, but the surgeons think, with a good chance for recovering nevertheless.

Grace and her mates were playing tag along Winthrop street on their way to school. The girl who was "it" made a dash at Grace, who dodged, then ran around an auto truck standing by the curb. In the roadway Grace was struck by an automobile driven by Fred Tolman, jury of Pleasant street, Winthrop. As soon as he saw the child dart out from behind the stationary truck Mr. Tolman jammed on his gaso line but was unable to avoid an accident.

Grace was taken to the Metcalf Hospital at Winthrop Centre and word was sent to her mother, Mrs. Michael McCarthy of No. 396 Winthrop street.

DROP CASES OF SUSPECTS AT CREAMERY

A. W. Davies, manager of the Plymouth Creamery Company at No. 268 State street, today declared the company would permit no to fine the former employes who were discharged, since it is alleged they admitted robbing the company right and left during the past few years.

"I fail to see where I can accomplish anything by prosecuting the men," declared Davies, who was very much put out because the matter became public. It was at first reported the thefts amounted to $50,000, and that $12 a week foremen were buying diamond rings, automobiles, Summer cottages, etc.

"That is all bosh," said Davies. There was a little something wrong here, but the total isn't one-tenth of that amount. I'd like to know where all this talk about automobiles and diamonds started. The only restitution consisted of a couple of cheap gold watches that two of the men had given up. If they had any of anything like $50,000 worth of milk and cream there wouldn't have been anything left for the company to sell.

"I engaged the services of detective agency when I first began to suspect something was wrong. I wanted to be sure. Two or three mornings two detectives hid in an office I have a short distance down the street. They watched my men through the window and the trucks came in. There will not be any prosecution."

MANN OUTLINES REPUBLICAN 1916 PLATFORM

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—Protection for American industries, the upbuilding of the commerce of the country, the construction of a navy that will be sufficient to protect the country and guard our commerce, and a guaranteed protection of life and property in Mexico will be four of the principal planks in the Republican platform for the next presidential election, according to Congressman James R. Mann of Illinois, Republican leader in the House.

"The verdict of this election amounts to a vote of censure of the Democratic administration, not only for what it has done, but for what it has left undone," said Congressman Mann.

"The Democratic tariff bill has been a failure. Their treatment of commercial enterprise has had the result of throttling commerce to a large extent.

LITTLE LEGISLATION.

"I do not look for very much legislation at Washington next Winter. If the Democrats have the House, as they appear to have, Champ Clark will be the next Speaker. The Republicans will not enter into any movement to throw him over for one of the blind followers of Wilson. There has been more or less talk of such a plan in Democratic circles, but it will not come to pass.

"The sentiment of the country is a revision of the tariff. We must afford protection to American industries. As a result of the war in Europe we now have the greatest opportunity that we have had any other country ever had. But if we tell our people to go ahead and build factories and to make all manner of things, we must give them protection that will warrant them in investing their capital if we are to build up the industries of this country on a firm and stable basis. If we do this then the development of the United States will be something that few have imagined and then only dimly.

CARE NAVAL IMPERATIVE.

"A large navy is inevitable as a result of the European war. We must not only increase our navy, but we must look to our coast defenses and be prepared for any eventuality. The Republican party will stand pledged to this policy through and through. The great navy must come unless there should be an agreement between all the nations whereby an international court might be established to which all disputes could be referred. But I look for nothing unlikely in the present time.

"The Progressive party is dead. Of course the leaders will continue to be kickers, but the great mass of people have been Progressives will line up with the Republicans on the proposition that for years to come now a protectionist will be elected President, because a majority of the people are protectionists and they will all be together again."

Two South End Buildings Ordered Razed by O'Hearn

Building Commissioner Patrick O'Hearn, in his campaign against buildings that are fire risks, today ordered two South End structures, joined, three-story wooden buildings at No. 10 and No. 12 Camden street. The commissioner condemned them as "entirely unsanitary and unsafe."

Also he instructed his inspectors to search the city for cases where freight elevators are used as passenger elevators. If any are discovered, the freight elevators will come under the law requiring elevator operators to have a license

ALLSTON GIRL, 13, SAVES FOUR CAUGHT IN FIRE

Four children—two of them cripples—were saved by Annie Brody, thirteen, when trapped by a $4,000 fire at No. 211 Brighton avenue, Allston. The fire was started by the explosion of a gasoline tank.

The Brody girl dashed upstairs into the smoke-filled attic to find her sister Jennie half-dazed by the smoke and her brother George, three, sleeping peacefully. Picking up the latter and taking Jennie by the hand, she led them both downstairs to safety.

Then she remembered that in the apartment on the ground floor were her playmates, Philip Johnson, who lived there, and Harold Olsen, a neighbor, both little boys being cripples.

She helped out both the terrified little boys. Then, when the affair was over, she ran crying to her folks to tell them the house was on fire.

Crimson Criticises Segregation Plans

The plans laid out for the segregation of Harvard freshmen does not entirely meet with the editorial approvement of the college daily, the Crimson, which today suggest that the "freshies" be allowed to eat in whichever "dorm" they desire rather than to have to stick to the fare provided by one hall. The Crimson says: "This will furnish a means of getting the members of the different halls more in contact with one another. By this plan, the crystallization of the various halls into set groups of acquaintances will be prevented."

Curtis and White Lead in Revere's Mayoralty Fight

Candidates for Mayor and Councilmen in the new city of Revere have until tomorrow to file their nomination papers. Former Representative Arthur B. Curtis and Chairman Walter T. White of the Board of Selectmen are the most likely candidates for Mayor. James Dolan has been mentioned and has been endorsed by the Democratic Town Committee.

There are many candidates for the Council.

Mr. Curtis was the originator of a finance committee for the town, but has not held public office for many years. Mr. White gained much prominence in the Summer of 1912, when he had the Metropolitan police raid the Lynnway Club, without the knowledge of the local department.

SHOW DOG IN SUIT BY EAST BOSTON BOY

An eight-year-old Boston bull terrier was shown to Judge Lawton and a jury in the Suffolk Superior Court today as the chief exhibit in a $5,000 damage suit brought by thirteen-year-old George Zink of No. 25 Trenton street, East Boston, through his mother, Mrs. Annie Zink, against William A. Foss of No. 135 Webster avenue, East Boston.

The Zink boy testified that on August 13, 1913, while playing tag with another boy, he climbed on the fence surrounding Foss's orchard in East Boston, and when the other boy went to tag him fell off the fence into the orchard. Foss, he declared, set the dog after him and the dog bit him in the leg. He was treated at the Relief Hospital.

Foss denied he "sicced" the dog on the boy. He testified that the Zink boy entered the orchard with several other boys and that some of them were shaking his pear trees when he discovered them. He said he did not know how the Zink boy came by the teeth marks in his leg, and denied that Mrs. Zink had ever called upon him and asked to have the dog shot.

Mistake in Bottles Kills Waverly Man

John Giannotti, a gardner at Peirce brothers' greenhouses on Waverly ave. took home a bottle full of gasoline last night to kill flies in the house. After he bought a bottle of medicine on the way home to treat a cold. When he reached home he took a drink—as he thought—from the bottle of medicine. But he got the gasoline instead—and died in five minutes.

IN SUNDAY'S AMERICAN.

EMBARGO ON CATTLE TO STOP PLAGUE HERE

No more cattle can be brought into Massachusetts from any other State until the foot and mouth disease is eradicated, or at least checked.

The Massachusetts Board of Agriculture today ordered closed for three cattle quarantine stations in this State—at Brighton, Watertown and Somerville. The board refuses to issue further permits for bringing cattle in from other States.

Meanwhile the discovery of the foot and mouth disease at Amherst, Mendon and Attleboro, has caused action to be taken against Massachusetts cattle from outside.

Dispatches today from Albany stated that the New York State Department of Agriculture has put an embargo on all cattle shipped from Hampden County, Massachusetts, on account of the disease being found there.

QUARANTINE HELP.

Dispatches from Chicago say that only one more case has developed among the $2,500,000 worth of prize stock which was exhibited at the Chicago Dairy Show and which is now under strictest quarantine.

The extreme and expensive precautions taken by exhibitors to protect their registered stock, which has so far escaped the disease is well illustrated in the case of the famous Ames herd from North Easton, which had the good fortune to be housed in one of the barns farthest from the infected section.

The Ames cattle are now locked in their barn and the attendants are locked in with the herd. The attendants are not allowed to come out. Their food is handed in to them.

DRASTIC MEASURES.

It is also interesting to note that, among the exhibition stock at Chicago, no Guernseys have yet taken the disease. The eighteen head killed were Ayrshires and Holsteins.

The necessity of sharp, stringent measures is emphasized in a statement by United States Veterinarian Bennett at Chicago today. He said: "I have no idea at present what the extent of the outbreak is, but foot and mouth disease sweeps across the country. Once it gets going north we will stop it. If we have to kill one hotly 150,000,000 head of cattle to stamp this out it will be cheap for the wealth of a whole. We have dealt with two epidemics of the disease before and have stamped them out by killing the most infected cattle.

"In previous times the outbreaks of the disease have been quelled in from three to six months, but this time the contagion seems to be especially severe. The disease has been found in so many localities so widely that to say that the extent to which it has attacked the herds of the country cannot be estimated."

PAY HALF VALUE.

On the matter of damages for slaughtered stock Mr. Bennett said:

"The government is paying $50 per cent of the value of the animals so slaughtered in Indiana. We do in some instances pay the full cost, but I think it will be set down that where apparently healthy cattle have to be condemned the government will appraise them and pay the damage.

"As the matter now stands, a number of men in the cattle business may be ruined. It is regrettable, but impossible to avoid. If we permit shipment on any animal which may have infected ours and everything else the cattle business is involved with, in case there are infected cows in the herd. We must stick to the order and benefit the many at the expense of the few."

Girl of 16 Is Left Stranded in Boston

Unable to speak a word of English, Mary Salaca, a pretty sixteen-year-old girl, was found wandering aimlessly about Scollay square, early today. When questioned through an interpreter, the girl told the police she had been living with a family in Manchester, N. H. She came to Boston with them. They sailed for Greece, and left her here alone. She was given into the care of the State Board of Charities.

Spaniel Saves His Mistress at Fire

Mrs. Joseph Leiba of Elm street, Salem, owes her life to her little pet spaniel. Early today the house in some unknown manner caught fire. The dog rushed to his mistress' room, jumped upon the bed, licked her face, and barked until she awoke. She escaped, with the dog, through a second story window onto a roof, unharmed. Her house and adjoining barn were destroyed.

600 Brockton Pupils Flee School Fire

BROCKTON, Nov. 6.—Six hundred pupils of the Keith Primary School fled from the building today in one minute and a half when fire was discovered in the basement under a stairway by Miss Angie Ellis, a teacher. William Thompson, the janitor, was badly burned while trying to put out the fire. Miss Ellis discovered the fire and sounded the fire drill bell.

AMOS J. ROBINSON, missing Attleboro boy whose mother has been made ill by his disappearance.

Attleboro Attorney Seeks Son Missing Since Last Friday

Herbert H. Robinson, an Attleboro attorney, has written the AMERICAN asking help in finding his son, Amos J. Robinson, sixteen, who disappeared Friday. The boy started for Boston when last seen.

Mrs. Robinson, since the boy left home, has become very ill, and is begging to see the boy. Mr. Robinson writes as a message to his son: "If you don't want to come home, just drop a postal card to mother. Then you may stay if your work is honorable."

The boy is described as 5 feet 6 inches tall, wore knee trousers, tan shoes, gray sweater, Norfolk coat.

His father thinks he may be found about moving picture houses or news stands.

Climate Failed; Medicine Effective

Sufferers from Tuberculosis often think that medicine will not help them. Fresh air, regular habits and good food aid in restoring health, but more is often needed. Many have been restored to health by Eckman's Alterative. Read this:—

Weldon, Ill.

"Gentlemen:—Through your instrumentality I have been saved from a premature grave. On December 14, 1901, I was taken with Typhoid Pneumonia, which developed into Tuberculosis (bacilli were found). In February, 1905, I went to Fort Worth, Texas, and later to Canon City, Colorado. After being there two weeks my physician informed me that my case was hopeless. Three weeks later I returned home, weighing 105 pounds, the doctor having given me no assurance of reaching there alive. On July 14, 1905, I began taking Eckman's wonderful remedy for Lung Trouble. Now I am stout and well and can do any kind of work about my grain elevator." (Abbreviated.)

(Affidavit) ARTHUR WENH.

Eckman's Alterative is most effective in bronchial catarrh and severe throat and lung affections and bronchitis. Contains no harmful or habit forming drugs. Assists nature. Small size, $1; regular size, $2. Sold by leading druggists. Write for booklet of testimonials.

Nebraska May Yet Join Suffrage List

Nebraska may yet be added to the list of suffrage States, according to a wire received at suffrage headquarters, No. 585 Boylston street, today, from James Richardson of Omaha, who sent the following message: "Returns very slow. Anita will carry Douglas county, containing Omaha, by about 600. Still a possibility of our carrying, as the total against us is about 3,000, with many western counties to hear from. We still have hopes and will not give up the ship."

Bryan's Porter Falls Under 'Grape' Spell

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Nov. 6.—Grape juice indirectly caused the downfall of Joseph Jennings, thirty-two, porter, who is a train porter and was assigned to the Bryan special from St. Paul to Milwaukee. He was drunk most of Wednesday night and all day Thursday, witnesses asserted. He said in court: "All the time I was on that train I just kept thinking about grape juice. I just kept scrubbing and scrubbing, and when the train reached Milwaukee I naturally hit for a saloon. Then I got too much." Sentence was suspended.

Fourteen States for Prohibition

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—Fourteen States now have laws prohibiting the sale of alcholic beverages. The fourteen include four States added to the "dry" list as the result of Tuesday's election. On the face of the returns prohibition has just been adopted by Arizona, Washington, Oregon and Colorado. California, storied State-wide prohibition on Tuesday by a majority that may reach close to 200,000, and adopted an amendment against resubmission for eight years. Ohio also defeated prohibition by a large majority.

What We Are Putting Into Our Men's Suits at $16, $20 and $25

PLANNING the present campaign for our men's suit shops consisted first in seeing how much value could be crowded into those offered at our lowest regular price—$16.

This plan was based on the principle that the more worth our $16 suits contained the more would be compelled in those bringing higher prices, since every dollar upward in a Filene price scale must mean that much upward in the value scale.

This Problem Was Opened Up to the Leading Makers of Men's Suits—It Amounted to a National Competition

THE RESULT is a large assemblage of what are absolutely the best men's suits possible for us to sell, month after month, for $16. These suits represent, first of all, the best results of this competitive effort; and then they carry a profit so small that we might about as well have put them under the heading of GOOD PUBLICITY and let it go at that!

Wide range of choosing, not only as to fabrics but as to sizes. Fabrics are pure woolens and styles are right.

If you haven't done so, why not follow the example of your wiser brethren and make us prove all this?

Men's suits, $16 to $40. Overcoats, $16 to $45.

HEINZE, 'TIS SAID, DIED PENNILESS; HUNT WILL TODAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—Mrs. William M. Lieffmann of No. 2 East Sixty-seventh street, sister of the late F. Augustus Heinze, was yesterday appointed administratrix of the estate and guardian of the only son, F. Augustus Heinze, Jr. She will probably be present today when a search is made to ascertain if Dr. Heinze left a will or property.

Charles Stanley, for years confidential secretary to the multimillionaire mannates, said he had never seen a will by Mr. Heinze, and he thought he was the one in existence. The effects in the Broadway suite of Mr. Heinze will be gone over today in an effort to locate the document.

Rumors spread today that instead of dying possessed of several million of dollars, Mr. Heinze died penniless. "That is absurd," said Mr. Stanley, the secretary, when seen while in consultation with Attorney Julius Nathan Hockstein, at the latter's home in this city. "I can't understand how he left a handsome fortune."

"It is true he had lived modestly for over a year. It means a fact that he had changed his mode of life greatly, and that he was financially responsible. For more than a year Mr. Heinze was a ill to meet his debts, but long in beginning to do the company.

"I believe this story about the disappearance of Mr. Heinze's jewels to be a fabrication. Mr. Heinze had recently awarded to the suppression by Irwin Gould. I want to tell you something. That suit could have been settled for $150,000 the day after the trial began."

LILLIAN FRENCH BELIEVES HEINZE IS STILL LIVING

Mrs. Lillian Hobart French.

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—"I do not believe that Fritz Heinze is dead. I am going to New York today to find out for sure."

Mrs. Lillian Hobart French, whose interesting relations with F. Augustus Heinze, admitting over $50,000 in the Senator King's life, so patently ended with Heinze's marriage to Mrs. Bessie Golden Hellier, son in 1910, bobbed up in Chicago when told of the report that Heinze was dead.

"I want to know, too, if it is true," she said. "I believe it is true with all the circumstances that have come to light. I believe it as the result of the eleven long years since I was her comfortable wife.

"If I am not a beneficiary, I won't cause trouble. I have had enough of that. But I want to talk to Mrs. Heinze, the sister."

Mrs. French said she had been in Chicago for two weeks, and that for over her residence has been to a lifelong town near here.

Mrs. French first came into the Heinze news when she announced an associate of Ann Officer, once indicted in the Mahatma "Gould" in New York. Dozens of Wall Street men were named in the exposure.

Following 1910, Heinze's marriage to Bernice Golden Henderson was announced. Mrs. French declared she never could be, because she had a prior claim on Heinze's affections. She sued for $25,000 as payment for loans she said she had loaned him. The case was settled out of court.

In 1912 Mrs. Heinze got an interlocutory decree of divorce and $1,000 a month alimony. When she died a year ago she was reconciled on her death bed and the decree was expunged from the records.

Friendly Truce While Troops Eat

NEW PULLMAN RULES OUT

CONDUCTORS UNCERTAIN ABOUT:

CHOLERA, CARDS, DOGS, INSANITY, KICKERS, SILENCE, TIPS, TOBACCO, WEAPONS, YELLOW FEVER

SHOULD

LOOK IN BOOK AND SEE

Like the celebrated "Road Dodge," the Pullman car conductor has "Look In the Book and See."

Or rather, he is supposed to have read the book and to know what is down in it for every emergency. It is the Pullman Palace Car Company's new book of instructions to conductors, and when the company has learned it it would seem as though he had instructions for every emergency.

Suppose:

A passenger has small-pox.

A man violently crazy.

Or carries a pet alligator.

Or insists that the road is "Reno."

Or wishes to play poker.

Or draws a gun.

Or [illegible] other things happen.

The conductor, by the company's new books just issued, knows what to do or not to do. Some of the "don'ts" are startling.

"Should a car happen to be occupied by a person apparently afflicted with smallpox, cholera, yellow fever, scarlet fever, or diphtheria, the conductor will exercise the railway service."

Another "silence" rule reads:

"No information will be given anyone but officers of the company regarding the number of passengers carried or the earnings of cars."

The conductor may not permit a quiet game for a nickel limit, for the Book says:

CURFEW ON CARDS.

"Gambling will not be permitted in the cars at any time. Games for pleasure are permitted when they do not interfere with the comfort of the other passengers. Card playing in smoking rooms, except in compartments, is prohibited at all times and in sleeping cars after 10:30 p. m., except in drawing rooms and compartments."

On the vexed matter of "tips," the Book observes:

"Employes are forbidden to receive visitors, make visits to other cars, hail employes on passing trains, smoke or chew tobacco or gum, or play cards or carry offensive weapons, and are prohibited from soliciting or accepting tips from passengers for services rendered."

"When a passenger is hurt, in body or pocketbook, the conductor must get all the information he can about it, but 'soliciting' should be said by employes requiring the liability of this company or the railroad company in such cases and mention should be made in their report of any question of this nature asked them."

And about a million other instructions on how to run a Pullman car, but none over 200 satisfy the public be a gentleman and hold your job.

WHILE THE SUPPLY LASTS

New England women and girls are the first to take advantage of the AMERICAN'S remarkable offer of Embroidery Pattern Outfits, which not only offer 200 hot-iron transfer patterns, a pamphlet of instructions, all-wool colored canvas, floss and 10 skeins of silk and needles, assorted colors.

New Apparatus for Picturing Stomach

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 6.—An apparatus, which should prove of considerable service to the surgical profession, has been invented by M. Shirn Friedricksen. It photographs the interior of the stomach through the mouth, this enabling doctors accurately to locate cancers, ulcers and other abnormal affections.

FEAR INSANITY PERIL BY "TWILIGHT SLEEP"

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—Dr. Minne S. Gregory, alienist in charge of the psychopathic ward at Bellevue, says that three women who had been subjected to the "Twilight sleep" to become mothers had been made insane.

Two were made apparently hopelessly insane, he declares, while the third had recovered her mental faculties. These three women, Dr. Gregory declared, had come under his observation in the past two months. The alienist did not know of any other instances where the "Twilight sleep" had produced insanity in the mother. Two of the women are now confined in the State Insane Asylum.

"The drugs used on the mothers to produce the 'twilight sleep' caused the mental collapse of these women," Dr. Gregory said. "Their insanity took the form of delirium. The delirium showed that it was caused by drugs and the only drugs they had used had been given to them in their sleeping treatment. The drugs simply poisoned them."

TWO SENT TO ASYLUM.

Asked how long after childbirth the insanity developed in the mothers, Dr. Gregory said: "The delirium manifested itself in from two to five days after the children were born. Two of the women were brought here and placed in the observation ward. They grew worse and it was plain that their conditions were too serious for them to remain outside the asylum. Then they were transferred to the State Hospital. The third woman had a milder form of insanity and after a few weeks' treatment in Bellevue recovered."

Dr. Gregory explained that the use of drugs affected persons differently, and added:

"The treatment may not have as ill effect on one person, while it may be harmful mentally and physically to another."

MANY WOMEN TREATED.

The "twilight sleep" has been freely given to mothers in New York in the last few months. It has been tried with great success in hospitals where several babies have been born without their mothers being aware of it until hours after the birth.

The treatment originated in Freiburg, Germany. The drugs used in many places where the treatment is given are scopolamin, normophin and morphine. These are comparatively new in medicine. The drugs produce a narcotic condition of limited breadth and are used with the greatest caution.

Enough to say of them here is that they are used with extreme delicacy and caution and produce a narcotic condition of very limited breadth. The mother awakes from a dream, sees her baby, embraces the little one and is happy.

Dr. Herbert C. Allen, chief obstetrical and gynecologist at the Chelsea Street Hospital, here produces the twilight sleep by administering to the mother nitrous oxide gas and oxygen. In a paper he read before the New York State Homeopathic Medical society Dr. Allen stated this is a safer and surer method than that practiced at Freiburg.

Nitrous oxide gas is more commonly known as laughing gas; oxygen is a stimulant, even in exhilaration. Thanks to modern medical science, the debut of a baby may become quite as jolly an occasion as its christening.

Women Now Have Full Suffrage in Eleven States

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—Women now have full suffrage in eleven States and in the territory of Alaska, according to latest returns, which apparently gave the franchise to women in Nevada and Montana. Late tabulation of the vote gave equal suffrage a lead of 1,317 in Montana and 3,500 in Nevada.

The eleven female suffrage States, with the time of granting the franchise, are: Wyoming, 1890; Colorado, 1893; Utah, 1896; Idaho, 1896; Washington, 1910; California, 1912; Arizona, 1912; Kansas, 1912; Oregon, 1912; Nevada, 1914; Montana, 1914.

Four in Westminster Would Join Fitchburg

FITCHBURG, Nov. 6.—Owners of four farms, covering an area of about 400 acres today petitioned the City Council to seek legislation for annexation to Fitchburg. The territory is located in Westminster, adjoining town. The petitioners declare that all they get from Westminster are receipts for tax bills.

BOSTON WOMAN WINS PLEA TO REOPEN DIVORCE

Mrs. Mary A. Reilly of No. 1 Chestnut place, Charlestown, has been awarded a writ of error by the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals to her appeal from the decision of the Alexandria Circuit Court, which granted a divorce to her husband, Joseph A. Kelly.

The couple were married on February 25, 1906, by the Rev. Michael Dennis Kelly, who was the engineer of the Boston police boat Guardian for a number of years.

Two years after the marriage, Mrs. Kelly was granted a separation by the Suffolk County Probate Court, and her husband was ordered to pay her $10 monthly for maintenance.

TECH LIBERAL TO CAMBRIDGE, SAYS M'LAURIN

President Maclaurin of Technology, today declared Technology is doing three times as much as any of scholarships for Cambridge students as for those coming from other sections, and as much for Cambridge boys as is possible with its limited budget.

Mayor Goode and the Cambridge Board of Aldermen want to have the full scholarships awarded each year to Cambridge students in return for the enormous benefits and privileges which the city of Cambridge confers, it is claimed, on the institute. "It isn't fair," says President Maclaurin. "I was decided to set aside the sum of $2,000 for Cambridge undergraduate scholarships, this sum being more than one-tenth of the whole sum available for undergraduate scholarships at the institute. This amount of $2,000 [illegible] has all been distributed, there [illegible] twenty beneficiaries, seven receiving grants of $200 [illegible] five grants of $150."

Dandruff Soon Ruins The Hair

Girls—If you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to fuss with brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.—ADVERTISEMENT.

L WOULD END FLAT FIVE-CENT FARE SYSTEM

The Boston Elevated has indicated its willingness to end the flat five-cent fare system under which it now operates in all of Boston, excepting Hyde Park.

Attorney F. E. Snow, the road's counsel, declared before the Public Service Commission that the Elevated would favor the scrapping of the road with the Bay State Street Railway, or other connection here to see action finally.

A five-cent fare would not apply to the new company.

It should be determined that the income from the various zones would approximately support them, so that no additional burden should be placed upon the communities now served by the Elevated.

The consent of the city of Boston and of the stockholders of the West End street Railway should be obtained, since the new merger is to be made with the Elevated.

At the hearing, counsel today, Mr. Snow observed that "the present five-cent fare has already been stretched beyond a reasonable limit," and that with any extension of the system the fare would go up. He said, however, that a restoration of the system to its present limits should be made before the commonwealth's new responsibilities.

"The extension of Hyde Park is a mere nominal one, constituting a settlement of the transportation problems of the Hyde Park people," Mr. Snow declared that the Bay State Railway operating in Hyde Park, "not satisfactory," and that the Elevated "does those difficulties not yet been solved."

"In no event, in my opinion, could a five-cent fare to Hyde Park be put in operation.

"As regards the steam railroads, the Elevated is of the opinion that the time may soon come when it will be better for the public, the roads and this company that some arrangement be made whereby the Elevated may operate its equipment over those railroad lines within the limits of the city of Boston. Some means must be found whereby suggestions for improvements may be approved by the Public Service Commission."

DR. FARRAR COBB IN AUTOMOBILE CRASH

As a result of an automobile mishap Dr. Farrar Cobb of No. 24 Commonwealth avenue to reach a patient six or seven people including two children are today suffering from more or less serious injuries; and Dr. Cobb did not reach his patient after all.

The heavy automobile in which he was making his dash 820 feet into and demolished utterly the automobile of Mr. Levi Wales of Newton Lower Falls. There were five people in Mr. Wales' car. In Dr. Cobb's car there was a nurse.

The exact injuries to the different people involved have not been ascertained, because Dr. Cobb has made every effort to keep the matter secret. He did not give the Wellesley police the name of the nurse with him, and to inquiries today he responded:

"I have no information to give out."

Dr. Cobb is a Back Bay physician of some reputation. He was recalled upon to perform an operation in Framingham—so far as the police have learned the story. He took a trained nurse in his car and set out at some speed.

It was on Washington street, Wellesley Hills, that the collision occurred. The scene is unexplained.

LIGHT CAR DEMOLISHED.

His heavy touring car struck the lighter automobile a tremendous blow. The light car was demolished, while Dr. Cobb's own machine was so badly damaged that it was towed to a garage. The impact was terrific.

The Wales machine contained Mr. and Mrs. Wales of Cornell street, Newton Lower Falls, their two children and two grandchildren. Mr. Wales was cut by flying glass and severely injured about the chest, with possible internal injuries. It is said he had a broken rib.

Mr. Wales' son-in-law was likewise cut and bruised. He contracted water on the knee, it was today reported. One of the children was scratched and cut, and both were shaken and bruised, but their injuries luckily were not serious.

KAISER BARELY ESCAPED DEATH AS BOMBS FELL

CALAIS, Nov. 6. Further details are now at hand of the Kaiser's narrow escape from death from bombs thrown by an aeroplane attacked by the allied army operating in the zone from Arras to Ypres for five days. The Emperor was present at the operations on that front and it was because of his presence the enemy's aeroplanes attacked so vigorous pressure on the allies, regardless of the enormous sacrifice of life.

Last Sunday the Kaiser, with some of his aides, arrived by motor car at a chateau at Thielt about 5 p.m. Apartments had been reserved for the Emperor. Dinner was ready and his personal valet, who had already been appointed to the bedroom prepared for him. He was in a hurry to get out of dress for dinner but soon settled down to rest.

After dinner, instead of going to bed, he friendly left the chateau with two of his aides. He motored to the other end of the town where he found were stationed. Twenty minutes after the Kaiser left the first Taube bombs fell upon the building he had been occupying. Two of the bombs, it is reported, fell in the very room which he occupied. Had the Kaiser been in bed at the moment the bombs fell he would have been killed.

TWO MEN AT TRIGGER.

LONDON, Nov. 6. A letter from the front, published in German papers, says that it requires two men to pull the trigger of the big Krupp cannon.

SURGICAL MAGNET.

PARIS, Nov. 6.—Since the war began bullets have been extracted from wounds four inches deep by the use of a magnet. The magnet, applied to the surface of the wound, pulled the bullet five inches to the surface and out.

MRS. PAGE, wife of the American ambassador is now a member of the executive committee of the American Women's War Relief Fund in London.

HONORABLE H. B. BRUCE of the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders, is reported dead. While the army list gives no Captain H. B. Bruce, it does contain Captain the Honorable Henry L. Bruce of the third Royal Scots, heir of Baron Aberdare. This Captain Bruce in 1906 married Camille Clifford, an American actress.

When You Come Here For Your Suit or Overcoat

—you are dealing with the greatest value-giving institution of its kind in New England—a store where only merchandise of the highest possible character can ever be found; where prices are made exceptionally low by the triple alliance of big spot-cash buying, spot-cash selling and low Summer street rent; and where your satisfaction is assured by a money-back guarantee as strong as the Rock of Gibraltar.

THERE'S nothing in the East to compare with our overcoat stock in size, in variety or in values offered, while as to style—even Fifth Avenue's most exclusive shops must take off their hats to us.

HERE are more overcoats and better overcoats than you probably ever saw in any one store before—not from a few makers, but from MANY makers—from ALL makers, in fact, who really produce Good Clothes.

WHETHER you come with a million in your pocket or only your week's salary, the very overcoat you're looking for is here at a less price than you'd expect to pay for such a fine garment

Style with a capital "S" is reflected in every line of the very exclusive and aristocratic overgarment illustrated herewith. It's the

"King George"

A Kuppenheimer Overcoat

This coat is for gentlemen of refined taste who would avoid even a suggestion of the bargain-basement balmacaan in their dress. The King George is a snug-fitting, double-breasted coat with wide, soft-roll lapels, deep velvet collar and cuffs on sleeves. We show this model in blues, grays and browns, in both domestic and imported fabrics, at $22.50 $25 to $30

Silk Lined Dress Coats

These are the coats demanded year in and year out by conservative dressers who are not blown hither and yon by every change of the style wind. Blacks, oxfords and two shades of gray, in domestic meltons, velour finished fabrics, vicunas and Elysian

$20 $25 up to $40

No announcement from us would be complete without mention of

The "Klavicle"

A Kuppenheimer masterpiece, the greatest achievement ever recorded in overcoat making, and the fastest selling coat we've ever seen or heard of. The demand is tremendous. So is our stock

$20 $25 up to $40

Windproof, Rainproof

Motor Coats

These are big, long, roomy fellows, made double breasted as every good motor coat should be. Some have worsted body lining and some are warm enough to go unlined, but all have satin yokes and sleeves. Unlike fur coats, they shed the rain and snow and afford limousine luxury at cycle-car prices.

$16.50 $20 up to $30

Our Boys' Dept.

Makes a specialty of courteous and intelligent service as well as of matchless values in Boys' Clothes that are all new this season, correct in style, finely tailored and guaranteed in every way.

Suits and Coats, $5 to $10

Mackinaws $5 and $6.50

A Neckwear Scoop

Long ago we bargained with a big importer for all his sample blankets of finest Foreign Silks, and now the Ties are here. English, Austrian, French and German. Needless to say there's no more to come. Rich and beautiful beyond compare. Only 3 of a kind, but about 400 kinds. Ordinarily they'd be $1.50, $2, $2.50 and $3. Take your pick at $1.15.

With only two days more to go the riders in the six-day race at the Arena are out to rack up a record that will stand.

To-day they are going merrily along to the good of the old mark, showing an increase over yesterday's score and another big jump is looked for before the fifty hours has ended.

Yesterday's riding was exceptionally fast, caused principally by the fact that the field made red-hot work to weaken the three [illegible]

Their Married Life

Helen Puts in an Uncomfortable Afternoon Waiting for Mrs. Raymond

Copyright, 1914, International News Service.

"SOME one wants to speak to you on the telephone, ma'am," said Nora, coming into the dining room, where Helen was busy sorting silver.

"Hello," said a voice over the telephone, a voice calculated to be sweet and winning, but which Helen heard with a strange feeling of remembrance. Where had she heard that voice before?

"Hello, who is this, please?" she said, trying her best to recall where she had heard the voice last.

"Why, don't you know? Well, I suppose voices are different over the telephone, so I'd better tell you. This is Mrs. Raymond."

"Mrs. Raymond?" said Helen, still trying to remember. "Yes, I know now. Why, Mrs. Raymond, where did you come from?"

Mrs. Raymond had been the pest of the hotel last Summer at the shore, and Helen and Warren had been thoroughly out of patience with the way she had clung to them, and now here she was in Boston evidently with her husband, and there was no doubt that they would claim both Helen and Warren as old friends and expect to be entertained.

"We are down here for a week or so just for a visit," Mrs. Raymond was saying. "We are staying at the Blank, and I want you to come down and have dinner with us tonight."

"I don't believe we'll be able to do that, Mrs. Raymond," said Helen, with a sigh of relief. "Mr. Curtis and I are dining out tonight."

"That's too bad. Well, you come down this afternoon and we'll have tea somewhere. I certainly do want to talk to you."

Helen hesitated. She was planning to be busy or had been until Mrs. Raymond had called and now she had to have all her arrangements changed. However, if she went down this afternoon perhaps it would arrange matters so that Warren would not have to be dragged into an engagement. She had better go.

HELEN AGREES TO COME FOR A LITTLE WHILE

"Well, I am up to my ears in work, but I'll come down for a little while, anyway," she said finally, as cordially as she could. "Thank you; good-by."

At three-thirty that afternoon Helen, in the brown suit with the fur over which she had had so much worry, was going up in the elevator of the Hotel. Mrs. Raymond had asked her to come upstairs, and although Helen would have preferred to wait down stairs in the lobby she could do no more than to comply with any wish Mrs. Raymond might make while she was hostess.

The page had gone up in the elevator with Helen, and now he threw open the door, and a few minutes later they were knocking at the door of one of the rooms on the third floor. Helen was no answer and Helen looked up at the page in surprise.

"That's very strange," she said finally, "I was to have met Mrs. Raymond here. You're sure this is the right number?"

Helen said nothing as the page summoned one of the chambermaids, who unlocked the door so that Helen could step inside. Helen could not help thinking it was strange that Mrs. Raymond to go off when she was expecting company, and yet there were many strange things that Mrs. Raymond might do in Helen's estimation that no other woman would think of doing.

Helen walked restlessly around the room, which was the typical hotel room with its heavy red window draperies and substantial furniture. There was a tiny bath in connection and the outlook was on the court; everything was comfortable, but Helen was too nervous to sit down. She wondered after she had waited fifteen minutes what she ought to do. Perhaps she had made a mistake in the place she was to meet Mrs. Raymond. She could phone down and have her paged.

SHE WAITS AND NO SIGN OF MRS. RAYMOND

On second thought, however, she decided to wait another ten minutes and then go down and look through the different rooms herself; there was no need of scolding things in too much of a hurry, and Mrs. Raymond might have a valid excuse for being late.

Another fifteen minutes passed. She had been here now for over half an hour, and still no signs of Mrs. Raymond. She certainly would not wait any longer. Crossing over to the telephone she called up the desk downstairs.

"Will you send a page around for Mrs. Raymond?" she said to the clerk.

"She may be waiting in the palm room or in the restaurant. Find out for me, will you?" She hung up the receiver with a click, and five minutes passed while she waited. Then she heard voices in the hall and a second later a key was fitted into the lock and Mr. and Mrs. Raymond entered.

"Why, you poor dear," gushed Mrs. Raymond, hurrying over to Helen and kissing her effusively. "I am so very sorry for all this. Either you misunderstood me or I made a mistake. Did I tell you to meet me up here?

"I thought I told you to meet me in the palm room. I meant to anyway, but we had lunch a little earlier and I got back later than I expected, and I hardly remembered which I had said. But, Raymond was sure I had told you upstairs, but I said no."

"I had you paged just a minute ago."

"No, really; why we must have decided to come upstairs before the page got as far as the palm room, and here we are."

Helen looked at the time quickly. It was half-past four, just an hour since she had arrived. Perhaps she could make some excuse and find out for tea.

"Well, you poor child," said Mrs. Raymond before she had time to say anything. "You must be starved. Come tea and toast will fix you up."

"Would you like anything else?" put in Mr. Raymond. "We always carry something with us, and we might have something before we go down."

"No, nothing more," said Helen quickly.

"Then we'll go right downstairs and have something to eat right away. I don't know what you must think of me, dear, but I hope you'll forgive me this time. We'll do better when you stay with Mr. Curtis to dinner with us, and I do want to come up and see your apartment. I know it must be charming. There now, I've left taste about everything. I always said so."

"You and Mr. Raymond must come up and have dinner with us some evening," Helen found herself saying much to her surprise. How could she do anything else, though, when Mrs. Raymond had just about asked herself.

And as they went into the tearoom Helen wondered vaguely what Warren would say to all this.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DON'T BE ASHAMED OF YOUR HOME

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a girl nineteen, and have a great many admirers and would very much like to have some of them call at my home, but I do not think it is fit for any outsider to see on account of its meagreness and the neighborhood it is in. I, therefore, have a great many quarrels at home with my mother and brother which troubles and worries me a great deal.

Do you think it is very wrong of me to meet them on the outside, as I know that I can take care of myself.

BRIGHT EYES.

ENTERTAIN your friends in your own home. If they care so little for you that they will not come into a poor neighborhood or visit a shabby home in order to be with you, their regard can never bring you happiness.

THE ART OF CONVERSATION

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I read your article on "Talk and Popularity." It is indeed interesting to read your articles, and in every way try to follow your valuable advice.

I'm far from an interesting talker, I can express my feelings much better on paper. When it comes to talking personally with some chap I'm afraid they find me dull. I love to listen rather than talk, for every time that I wish to talk on some subject I can't find words to express myself. It all sticks in my throat and the words just won't come. Will you advise me personally?

DAWN R.

A GIRL who writes as well as you do is sure to learn to converse if she tries faithfully. Talk slowly and express your meaning in short, simple sentences. The art of listening well and sympathetically is a rare gift. Those you have this, why not follow the conversation of others instead of trying to lead it? Read the old dramatists and some of George Meredith's novels, in these you will find conversation as a fine art.

ASK HER TO WAIT

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young man twenty years of age and very dearly love a girl of eighteen whom I have known for a long time, and think my love is returned. At present I am serving my first enlistment in the navy. Do you think it would be advisable to ask her to wait at least a year before I will be in a position to marry, as I am seldom at home except on a furlough?

SINCE you are both so young, it would be quite all right for the girl you love to wait for you a year or even more.

Why My Husband Left Me

No. 2—The Jealous Wife Tells How She Ruined Domestic Happiness for Two

By DOROTHY DIX

"MY marriage was a failure," said the second woman, "because of my jealousy.

"I married a handsome, charming, magnetic young fellow to whom every heart turned as instinctively as a flower to the sun. He was adored by his family. He had hosts of friends, and his popularity was gall and wormwood to me. I could not bear the thought that any one else should lay claim to what was mine, and so in trying to separate him from other people I lost him.

"I suppose I am selfish. I suppose I am an egotist and self-centred, as all jealous people are, but all my life I have been a monopolist. Even as a little child I could not bear to share my dollies and my tea set with my little playmates, and I took this spirit into matrimony with me, and it spelled disaster for me.

"Before our marriage my wild jealousy of any attention that Tom showed any other girl flattered and amused him. He took it as a proof of my love and never dreamed but what when we were once married I would accept as beyond question the fact of his affection and glibly and loner toward me.

"He knew that he would give me no real cause for jealousy, for a truer and a better man never lived; but it is the curse of jealousy that it needs no cause, that it invents its own tortures, and thrives best on baseless and intangible suspicions.

"I laid the axe to the root of our happiness not three weeks after our return from our honeymoon. For the first time I went down to Tom's office, and I can remember well the little cry of glad surprise with which he rose up to greet me. But the harassing little speech and which I had intended to salute him died on my lips, and I gave him a greeting as cold and dry as a bit of ice from a desk not far from him sat a tall and handsome woman, her head bent above some papers about which she and Tom had evidently been in consultation at the moment of my arrival.

JEALOUSY ASSERTS ITSELF

"Instantly I saw green. Every jealous drop of blood in my body surged to my heart and poisoned it. This woman was at home in my husband's office. This woman knew more about his private affairs than I did. He consulted this woman. He had respect for her judgment. He liked her. Perhaps he loved her. The details of a hundred vulgar intrigues between them surged through my mind.

"I saw a troubled, wondering look come into Tom's eyes, but I did not see when I made those words and got away as quickly as possible, and literally stumbled back home. All the balance of the day I walked the floor, lashing myself into a fierce and fiercer fury of jealousy until Tom came home. Then the storm burst, and I poured over him all of my mad, jealous suspicions, and wound up by demanding that he should dismiss the woman at once.

"He listened to me with horror, that deepened as I went on with the revelation of how mean and little a soul I had, and when I had finished he positively refused my request. 'Miss Lilly,' he said, 'has been in my employ for ten years, and there's not a finer, nobler woman in the world than she is, and she is simply invaluable to me in my business. There has never been the slightest suggestion of any sentimental relationship between us, and I am not going to deprive the good woman of the means of making a livelihood and myself of a valued assistant to gratify your insane jealousy.'

"And he didn't. But I revenged myself by nagging him for years and years with suspicions about Miss Lilly, which I knew in my heart were groundless, until I killed every particle of confidence between us.

SUSPICIOUS OF HIS FRIENDS

"I was equally jealous of his friends. As I said, Tom was the sort of man that men and women loved. When we were first married they literally besieged our house, and it is like a knife in my heart now to remember how proud he was of his new wife and his new home, and how he welcomed his old companions to it, and tried to drag me into his old circle.

"But he might just as well have tried to mingle a snow-capped mountain and a tropical Jungle. I froze them out one by one. I snubbed the women. I let the men see that they were unwelcome. I ridiculed their peculiarities, and poured over them criticisms that burst like vitriol, until at last they came no more.

"Then I rejoiced. I selfishly thought that I had Tom all to myself, and that he had forgotten his old friends because he spoke of them no more. I did not take pains enough to know that I was the one who had lost out and had been put out of his heart, and that to save argument and scenes he saw his old friends on the sly down town.

"Worst of all, there was Tom's mother. She was a widow. She had made incredible sacrifices to educate him, and give him a start in the world, and he repaid her by a passionate devotion. The knowledge of his love for her and that he sent her money every month to live on drove me mad, and I shut the door in her face and continually reminded Tom of luxuries she might have if he did not give so much to his mother. When I said that he looked at me curiously, as if not knowing that there were women on earth like you,' he said.

"And that was the end. Tom goes his way and I go mine. His love is deadened first by my jealousy, my jealousy of his business, my jealousy of his friends, his family, his amusements; my insane, torturing jealousy that has wrecked our lives!"

HOW A FAMOUS DANCER WAS SADDENED AND SOBERED.

IN SUNDAY'S AMERICAN.

By DOROTHY DIX

TT is admitted that most marriages are failures. One in twelve ends in divorce in this country. A percentage of marriages that no man dares calculate ends in utter disillusionment and an estrangement crueller than divorce.

What is the reason of this? On what rocks was a marriage that started out so bravely and hopefully wrecked? Were big crimes or little sins against love the causes of this bankruptcy?

I have asked several men and women—good men and women—whose marriages are admittedly failures, to tell why their own marriages, entered into with every prospect of success, ended in disaster.

A Time-Saver

A shadow fell across the printer's desk, and he looked up to find a disapproved employer standing over him, holding a sheet of paper in his hand.

"Yes, sir," said the printer. "Can I do anything for you?"

"You can," answered the other, savagely. "I want the answers I have written on this paper to be printed on a very thick, strong piece of gilt-edged cardboard."

"Answers, sir?"

"Yes, answers. Then, after another years, has tired one became confidential. 'I want them printed so that I can hand them to my wife every night when I go to bed. That's why the card must be strong.

"May I ask, sir, the answers, sir?"

"I'll read it to you myself," replied the weary one. "Yes; I have locked the front door, and the back one. No; I have not left any lights burning. The dog is not in the house. I have not left any coffee burn holes in the carpet. That is not a burglar; it is the wind in the chimney. Yes; I will be sure to light the kitchen fire in the morning." No; I will not go down to see if the coal cellar is locked.' 'I am tired.' 'I want to go to sleep.' 'Good-night!'"

HER HUSBAND'S WIDOW

A Thrilling Story of Romance, Adventure and Intrigue, in Which a Beautiful Young Bride Plays the Part of the Heroine

By EDMUND B. D'AUVERGNE

(Dramatic translation, and all other rights in this story reserved by the Daily Mail—some rights in U. S. and in various New Zealand.)

"WELL, hang it all, what is there to do on board a rotten little raft like that?" grumbled Varney. "One needs fill in the intervals between meals somehow. Confound the woman! Wish I had never seen her."

The two men sat down at one of the little tables of the al fresco café in the Jardin.

OSWALD HAS A FIT OF REAL DEPRESSION

The young man glanced at his companion. It was strange to see the usually cheerful Oswald so gloomy and dispirited. He wished he could think of something to say, but no words came. That seemed to fit the case.

"I told you she wouldn't stay in Paris," resumed Varney, inspired violently into the gloomy vein, and I was right. She's gone back to London, but now she writes, to the height of the season, mark you, that she won't be home for weeks. She's taken him away to Scotland, moor-land, my boy, just think of it! Why, I never knew the grouse season before the twelfth of August."

Victor laughed. "That doesn't sound so very terrible," he said.

"Look here, Steele," said Varney, sitting up suddenly, "you and I have always got on well together, and I don't know any man I'd sooner stand by. I want you to read this letter and tell me quite straight just what you think of it."

He took a folded letter from his pocketbook and handed it to his companion.

Victor took it with a tremor at the sight of the once familiar writing, and read.

"West Highland Hotel,
"Oban, Argyllshire.

"Dear Oswald—I am very much surprised to find me in here. I hope you will not be angry, as no doubt you will, but really Jimmy has not been well, and the chance will do him good—and me. I don't take it as a holiday, as I am ready to look after the boy at any winds. But to be quite honest with you, that is not why I came. A queer mood has come over me. I can't explain—but I feel dissatisfied with the life we have been leading for the last two years. Don't take it as implying the least reproach to you—it is a mood, and I cannot help it. But I feel I must withdraw from all society, even, dear, from yours, for a time. I must go alone for a time and think. I shall not meet anyone I know in Scotland—not even Jimmy. That is why I am here that I might not be disturbed.

"I've been thinking this too extraordinary of me or inconsiderate. I had to come. Yours, Leslie."

"Why, you have been and gone and married him!" exclaimed Victor handed the letter back to his friend. "You know your wife better than I do, but I don't like it. I see no hint of jealousy in this letter—it that is any relief to your feelings—knee as if considering the problem.

Varney leaned across the little table and spoke low, "Steele, what can be wrong?" he demanded eagerly. "I agree with you it doesn't sound like jealousy."

He paid the waiter and the two men passed out into the moonshadows of the Champs-Elysees. For a few minutes they smoked in silence. Varney was the first to speak.

"It's a queer feeling, I dare say," admitted Varney, apologetically, "but somehow it sanctifies a wife in one's eyes. Bye and bye, talking of heirs, I promised to call tonight on my cousin—Captain Gaveston. You know. He is Sir Ralph Gaveston. My grandfather's name was Gaveston, but we changed it when we moved into the Varneys, who were also cousins of ours. If you have nothing better to do, I wish you would come with me. Sisslee's somewhere about, and Varney led the way to a table in the corner.

"Please do, Leslie," said Mrs. Charlie. He inherited quite a lot of the money from his father, and what little he had he soon parted with. Minnie Dove has managed to sell the title of Lady Gaveston to some wealthy woman or other, and she has found herself stranded."

He eyed with a proprietary air the fresh arrangement of the table, and then, as an ornamental afterthought, added a couple of bottles of champagne to the order. Victor introduced himself and Varney warmly by the hand, and Victor, who had already made a good impression on the old gentleman, pressed forward with a chair for him.

"Captain Steele, Sir Ralph Gaveston," said Oswald curtly as if not considering it necessary at effecting the introduction.

VICTOR STEELE MEETS SIR RALPH GAVESTON

Victor almost leaped with the surprise, pleasure and success of his position. His habit appeared to be on the shady side of life, but Oswald Varney and his family air as if determined to keep middle age at a distance. His face was lined and his hair was dyed yellowish, there were innumerable crow's feet beneath his eyes, and his mouth was a trifle flabby, but the head of his face.

His eyes glowed through his thick hair, which was worn rather long, his mustache above, his coarse mouth, and been cleverly tinted a reddish brown.

"Sadly glad to see you, Captain Steele," he declared with superfluous

Alle. Gabrielle Robinne, leading comedy actress of the Comedie-Francaise, Paris, says: "The reason why Savon Cadum is the ideal soap for the skin and complexion is that it meets all their requirements."

Soaps containing an excess of alkali roughen the skin and spoil the complexion. Savon Cadum, the great French Complexion soap, is made under the personal supervision of an eminent French chemist, and is recommended as an effectual aid to nature in keeping the skin healthy, thus promoting natural beauty. At dept. and drug stores, 50c. a cake.

"My! That soap makes you feel good"

"I find Lifebuoy the best soap I have ever used. It gives the skin the cleanest kind of feeling, especially after a bath and shampoo."

This is from a letter from a New Yorker who has used Lifebuoy Health Soap for two years.

You will never know the glorious sensation of real cleanliness and new life he describes until you, too, use Lifebuoy.

Begin to use Lifebuoy now
Watch the improvement in your skin

You will fairly revel in its big, thick, creamy lather. You will be delighted with the feeling of complete cleanliness and purity it gives you. And its famous antiseptic solution protects you by destroying the dangerous enemies of the skin.

FINANCIAL GIANTS ARE BEING REPLACED BY YOUNGER BLOOD

By B. C. FORBES.

Young men are to enter the saddle.

The law prohibiting "interlocking directorates," which takes effect in 1916, is hastening this epochal movement. The next two years will see tremendous changes.

* * *

Already the biggest men are loosening their financial shackles.

* * *

George F. Baker, director in half-a-hundred corporations, has already begun to ease his burdens. He is weary of it all.

* * *

Judge Gary began to retire from various boards a year or two ago, and will confine his attention by-and-bye solely to the Steel Corporation, of which he is the head.

Frank A. Vanderlip, though a comparatively young man, has begun to withdraw from the important railroads of which he is a director and executive committee member. That upon his vitality has been tremendous. Today he is lying on a bed of pain in the grip of typhoid fever, induced, of course, by a run-down condition. When he returns to the financial arena he is to quit his outside duties and concentrate his energies upon running the National City Bank—a man's-size job, for the City is the largest national bank in the United States.

Jacob H. Schiff, head of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., several years ago took similar action, and is no longer director in a score of non-banking corporations. The other day the youngest—and a very able—member of the firm, Mr. Hanauer, was elected to important directorship, an incident illustrative of what will become the general trend within the next eighteen months.

The Morgan people pulled in their horns recently and will have to do more in the same direction before long.

* * *

James Stillman years ago threw off the directorship yoke—and is infinitely glad he did. Since he chose to live a semi-leisure he has learned, he declares, the real joy of living.

* * *

James J. Hill boldly announced several years ago that he was to step down, but fate has been too strong. He is still a live, active wire, up to his ears in business—and knows it. He confide, he is quietly working on a gigantic educational scheme which he expects as very well to profit by and which he hopes to bequeath as a monument to his memory.

* * *

Poor Harriman worked himself to death. He used up his vitality trying to keep his mind going at express speed that his body rebelled, and he died of starvation.

* * *

The financial pendulum of coal are beginning to feel that Andy Carnegie and John D. Rockefeller were not old-style pulling at stakes when they did and woo health and happiness rather than dollars.

* * *

What a vista of opportunity is opening up for the younger generation! The old fellows are no longer to sit on every hoop and dominate everything. Even if some of them

MOTOR NOTES

By J. C. KERRISON.

This, the last day of the electric motor car salon in the ballroom of the Copley-Plaza, seems to be a most attractive one, the attendance being fully the equal of that enjoyed during any of the earlier days of the exhibit. The exhibits have undergone no change whatever and the undermining nor will there be any elimination until the exhibition has come to a close, one of the rules of the salon being that the exhibits shall remain intact from the opening to the closing.

The interest shown has been particularly gratifying to the exhibitors and while it cannot honestly be said that a sales record has been established the fact remains that it has taken as a whole, business has been most satisfactory. Many sales have been made and all of the exhibitors have been placed in touch with a larger number of live prospects.

President L. D. Gibbs, of the Electric Motor Car Club of Boston, has been in constant attendance since the opening of the show, and he is convinced that the interest displayed is indicative of a great activity in the local electric vehicle field in the very near future. He considers that there is steadily increasing demand for vehicles of this character and prophesies that within the coming twelve months the number now in use will be increased two-fold.

This afternoon the members of the Professional Women Club, who are to attend a reception to Anna Pavlowa, have been granted the privileges of the exhibit.

Fred L. Jewett, of the Paige Motor Car Company of Detroit, is in town visiting the new Paige agency at 889 Boylston street, now under the management of Sherwood Hall, Jr. Mr. Jewett is well pleased with the location and the manner in which the new company has taken hold of affairs.

* * *

Harry Fosdick, of the Wentworth-Fosdick Company, distributors of The Hupmobile, has just returned from an extended business trip through Northern New Hampshire and Maine. During his journeys he established several new Hupmobile agencies and learned a lot regarding the business conditions of that section of the country. He says that the farmers are particularly prosperous and there is no reason to expect anything other than a decidedly successful season.

OPTIMISTICS.

Cotton sales at Liverpool on Wednesday totalled 13,000 bales, the largest amount for many months.

So far New York banks have retired $18,000,000 emergency currency.

* * *

One day this week export business for all grains at Chicago amounted to the enormous 5,000,000 bushels. This was a new high record.

* * *

It is reported from London that the French government is going to place in the United States an order for 1,000,000 pair of woolen socks.

* * *

A European power has placed with a Pittsburg concern an order for 1,000,000 intrenching tools. Another big "opportunity" war order is for steel wheels for ammunition and rail heavy wagons.

* * *

A leading Chicago packer says the country will have no more foreign business for the next two or three years than it can take care of.

Wheat and flour exports from the United States for the month last week were nearly 2,000,000 bushels in excess of the total shipped during the corresponding 1913 week.

* * *

In spite of parcels post competition the Wells Fargo Express Company was able during the last fiscal year to pay stockholders $1,917,292 in dividends, an 8 per cent. distribution on $23,964,400 stock outstanding.

* * *

It is said that the foreign demand for American horses was so great that mills in this country would be able to run until February on European orders.

would, the new law will not allow them to do so.

But my knowledge and information justify me in saying that most of them have been engaged in active activity with genuine pleasure. Many of them have sons who heretofore have been kept in the background. These sons will now be given a chance to win their financial spurs. I know one multi-millionaire —one whose name appears in the newspapers almost every week—who will gladly give half his fortune and obliterate himself entirely to aid his son in making a big name for himself. Unfortunately, the son has not the right personality to become a real leader notwithstanding he has possessed full-weight brains.

Smart junior partners and level-headed business men who may not command hundreds of millions will be more in demand as directors of railroads and industrial corporations. Directors in future will really direct. They will not be mere figureheads. They will not be content to take the say-so of executive officers and let it go at that. The New Haven directors of the old regime are hearing to their cost that their bearing carried responsibilities which they evidently did not take seriously.

* * *

The new currency system, by decentralizing the "Money Power," will hasten and facilitate the ushering in of the new order. Honors will go around more.

In the United States there is no scarcity of brainy young men in every sphere of life, especially in business. With the retirement of the Old Guard, the younger generation will have greater room for promotion and achievement.

* * *

And let it be remarked that the New School is obsessed by none of the public-be-damned notions of the Vanderbilt-Morgan-Gould type of financiers. They realize that the public rule, that democracy, not autocracy, is in the saddle.

* * *

The evolution will be good for all of us.

Back Bay Doctor Saves Man in River

Dr. Lincoln Davis of No. 217 Beacon street rescued a would-be suicide from the Charles River, John Cheefa, jumped from the Esplanade at the foot of Berkeley street. Dr. Davis heard the cries of a woman who witnessed the act and hurried to the spot. He dove into the water, pulled out the man and administered first-aid treatment.

Actions of Judge Probed by C. L. U.

After hearing evidence presented by the Coopers' Union, as to a South Boston fight for a wage increase for the sugar refinery company, where the coopers are on strike, the executive board of the Central Labor Union voted to have a committee investigate the charges and report.

Three Firemen Hurt at Lexington Blaze

Three firemen were injured, damage estimated at $6,000 was caused, and farming tools, wagons and many tons of hay were destroyed when a large barn on the Vine Brook Farm, off Lincoln street, Lexington, caught fire from an unknown cause.

ORDER OUT OF CHAOS

is brought about by the "Apartment to Let" ads in the Boston AMERICAN. From a troubled brain come a peaceful mind, if you consult these little ads to the home-hunter.

MARGUERITE RAND who plays the squire's wife in "The Road to Happiness."

A change in the cast of "The Road to Happiness," William Hodges's notable success at the Wilbur Theatre, introduces a Boston girl in one of the roles. Marguerite Rand now appears as Mrs. Hardcastle, the squire's wife, a part which she played throughout the past two months of its run there by Mrs. Fealy, mother of Maude Fealy.

Miss Rand not only spent her girlhood in Boston, Cambridge and Somerville, but became quite noted in local amateur theatricals and later made her first professional bow here as an actress.

She was a pupil of Charles D. Gilbert of the Conservatory of Music and appeared in his special matinees at the Colonial Theatre. Even then she was attracted to comic opera. One of her best achievements was that of the Very Many, multi-aged New England woman in "Shadows," Mrs. Anne Greenleaf Sutherland's dramatization of a story by Mary E. Wilkins Freeman.

All one time Miss Rand deserted dramatic work proper to do lecturing on municipal subjects at the Filson Club. In her work on the same Miss Rand will be specially remembered by local playgoers for her comedy bit in "Excuse Me," in which she enacted the role of Ann Gattle, the missionary.

INFANT SAVING AUTHORITIES TO BE GUESTS HERE

Boston is going to play host to some very well-known men and women when the American Association for Study and Prevention of Infant Mortality meets in this city next Thursday.

From Toronto's Division of Child Hygiene are coming the medical director, Dr. George A. Ryerson, and Miss Helen N. M. Smith, supervising nurse. Dr. H. L. K. Shaw, director of the same department in New York, will be present from Albany, and Dr. Ellen A. Stone from this department in Washington. Dr. E. Heckkelb, director of the Infant Welfare Department of the Duluth Consistory Health Rite Mansion, is coming from Duluth, and Dr. F. W. Schlutz, medical director of the Infant Welfare Society, from Minneapolis. The "Show Me" State is sending Dr. Emmet S. Rucker, director of the Infant Welfare Society of Chicago, and Kentucky, Miss Elizabeth Shaver, of the Babies' Milk Fund Association of Louisville. Dr. J. Whitridge Williams and Dr. John Howland, respectively dean and professor in the Johns Hopkins Medical School, and Dr. J. H. Mathis, Knox are coming from Baltimore. Gentle, Kind Advice---To the Republicans Elected on Tuesday

Study carefully the mistakes of the Democrats—and don't make those mistakes.

Don't imagine that you can reorganize with a single effort of your giant brain the business and industrial life of a great nation.

A first-class college professor MIGHT do that. But you CAN'T.

Remember that this is a business country, and you are business managers of a very great concern.

First, keep the country as well off as it HAS BEEN in the past—then slowly and cautiously improve it, if you can.

Gentle and well-meant advice to chastened Democrats:

Learn the lesson that has just been taught you. Take it to heart.

When you know that a thing is wrong don't vote for it simply to keep "solid" with an Administration that is trying experiments on a large national engine.

Remember that the people have their eyes open, even if they SEEM to sleep.

You still have power left. Use it more wisely.

Remember that if it had not been for the war and the confused condition of public thought, PRACTICALLY ALL OF YOU WOULD HAVE BEEN LFET AT HOME AND REPUBLICANS SENT IN YOUR PLACES.

Think for those who send you to office, not for those in Washington who promise you patronage—and you will do better.

Why Seven States Changed Most of Their Congressmen

Consider for a moment these figures showing the number of Democrats and of Republicans in the present Congress from seven States and the number of each that will sit in the Congress elected last Tuesday.

	Present Congress.		New Congress.
	Dem.	Rep.	Dem.	Rep.
New York	31	11	21	22
New Jersey	10	2	3	9
Connecticut	5	—	—	5
Pennsylvania	12	18	5	26
Massachusetts	8	8	4	12
Ohio	19	3	10	12
Illinois	20	4	10	14

In the table the Progressives and Socialists are purposely omitted.

These States are selected for the purpose of comparison because they are the chief industrial commonwealths of the United States. In them industry is most diverse and most highly organized. In these seven States are more than one-third of the people of the whole Union. As a barometer of public opinion, as an index to business conditions, their political action may fairly be taken as authoritative.

But in these seven commonwealths two years of President Wilson's administration results in reducing their Democratic representation in Congress from 105 to 53 and increasing their Republican representation from 46 to 100.

What has caused this complete reversal of political sentiment in seven States, all of which, save one, gave their electoral votes to Woodrow Wilson?

Mainly the commercial and industrial depression brought upon the nation as a whole by the tariff legislation which was dictated by the Administration, and which, by executive action, was stripped even of the few features incorporated in it for the extension of American trade and the development of an American merchant marine.

The Congress, members of which have been thus vigorously disciplined for their part in the tariff legislation, which not only failed to reduce the high cost of living, but reduced the opportunities to make a living, was not wholly, perhaps not mainly, responsible for its disastrous results.

Under the able leadership of Oscar Underwood, who has just been elected to the Senate, the Ways and Means Committee showed comprehension of the fact that tariff revision does not merely mean cutting down a lot of duties. They recognized that a new tariff law not merely offered an opportunity to reduce the cost of some things to the American consumer, but that it also should be utilized to open new markets to the American producer.

Accordingly they accompanied the legislation which opened our markets to the foreign producers, with a reciprocity clause which authorized the President to use this as an inducement to foreign nations to join in reciprocity treaties which would open their markets to our producers.

And, knowing that the best way to stimulate foreign trade is to aid in the creation of a merchant marine to serve our shippers, they DIRECTED—not merely authorized—the Secretary of the Treasury to grant to imports coming in American bottoms a preferential duty amounting to a reduction of about 5 per cent.

THE AUTHORITY CONFERRED UPON THE PRESIDENT TO NEGOTIATE THE RECIPROCITY TREATIES HE HAS IGNORED.

THE SPECIFIC DIRECTION FOR THE PREFERENTIAL DUTIES THE PRESIDENT HAS ARBITRARILY SET ASIDE BY AN EXECUTIVE ORDER.

Recent history has made familiar the results of President Wil-

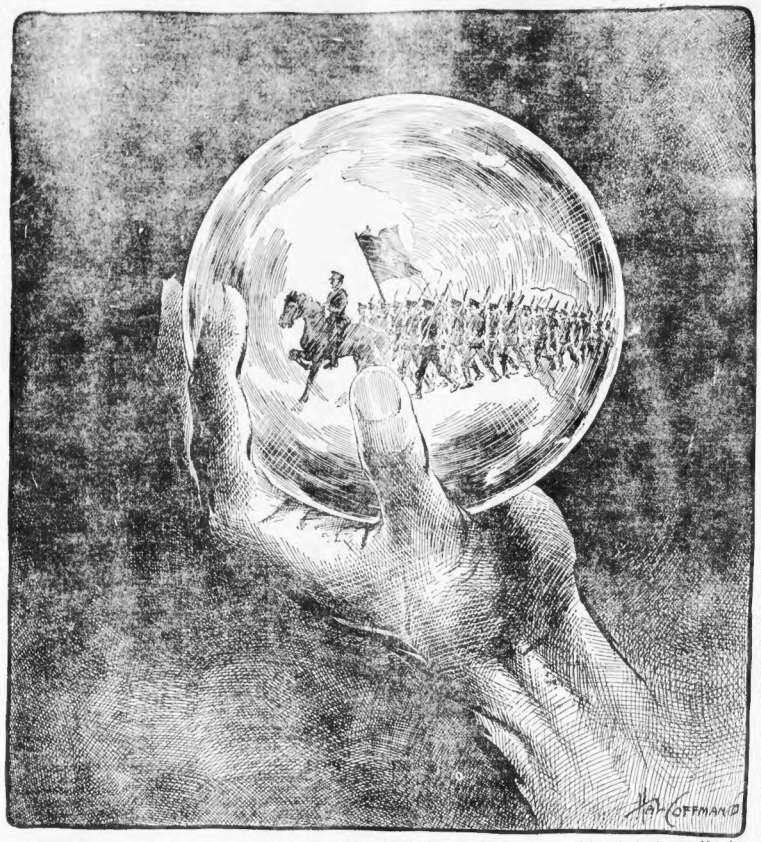
Whither Are They Marching?



It was an old belief that if a person gazed into a crystal ball he would see strange visions in its heart. If today the world were a crystal ball, the gazer would see endless lines of soldiers marching, marching, but only Fate could tell him whither or to what purpose.

A World Against the Sun

The Astronomical Spectacle That All May Observe on the Morning of November 7—The Planet Mercury as a Projectile

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

THERE will be an interesting astronomical event tomorrow which anybody can observe with the aid of the smallest pocket telescope, or with an opera glass. It is a transit of the planet Mercury across the face of the sun.

A good deal of astronomical knowledge may be obtained in a practical way by observing this transit, and it will be worth anybody's while to take the slight trouble required to behold the spectacle of another world showing itself in black silhouette against the circular white screen of the sun's disk.

Mercury shining as a bright star in the sky, and Mercury appearing as a round, inky dot on the sun, are two contradictory aspects of the same body that require explanation, and the explanation immediately makes plain a fact that is continually puzzling people who have not given particular attention to the important affairs taking place outside the earth. This fact is that a planet and a star are not at all the same thing, although most persons confuse them together, and ordinarily only an astronomer can distinguish one from the other.

The light by which Mercury, or Venus, or Mars, or Jupiter, or Saturn, or Uranus, or Neptune shines is simply borrowed sunlight. Deprive them of sunlight and they disappear unless they happen to pass across the sun, in which case they are seen as black circles moving over his face. This can only occur with Mercury and Venus, because they alone are inside the earth's orbit, and consequently nearer to the sun than the earth is. The fact that Mercury looks perfectly black when it is visible against the sun not only shows that it has no light of its own, but also that it is a solid opaque body, through which light cannot pass, for otherwise the sun would shine through it as through a ball of glass. The earth must sometimes present a similar appearance when it crosses the sun as viewed from Mars or Jupiter.

If it were possible for a star to cross over the sun it would be in visible during the transit, because the stars shine with a light of their own as brilliant as sunlight. Even a comet passing between the earth and the sun disappears when it is projected against the solar disk, for the reason that it, too, has a light of its own bright enough to make it blend into the sunlight.

This transit of Mercury will last about four hours, beginning on the southeastern edge of the sun's disk and ending near the western edge. But only the latter part of the phenomenon will be visible here, because the transit commences before the sun has risen in this western world. The whole thing will be over by a little after nine in the morning.

An extremely important warning for inexperienced observers is that they should not try to look at the sun without protecting the eyes with a dark, smoked glass. An excellent protection is a pair of electrician's spectacles, made for working about the arc light. If an opera glass or telescope is used it becomes still more important to protect the eyes by some light-absorbing screen of this kind.

You may look upon Mercury as a projectile 3,000 miles in diameter and weighing 300 quintillion tons, moving with a velocity of thirty-five miles per second, and rendered visible by passing across the white curtain.

But the earth is also a planetary projectile, traveling about nineteen miles per second in the same general direction as that in which Mercury is going, so that what we are really doing when we observe a transit of Mercury is seeing our projectile distanced by a swifter one, the latter being rendered visible to us by passing over an illuminated surface or background.

There will not be another transit of Mercury until the year 1924, by which time many terrestrial affairs will probably have fallen into new orbits, but the planets will still keep to the old paths.

DO YOU KNOW THAT—

Our markets thrown wide open to foreign manufacturers were instantly flooded with goods. Our manufactures languished. Factories were shut down. Workmen were thrown out of employment. The rapidly increasing balance of trade against us—amounting to more than $200,000,000 before the declaration of war in Europe—had to be met in gold. As a result interest rates went up; exceeded even those in London and Paris, face to face with war. A tight money market discouraged new enterprise. A tariff that gave everything and exacted nothing in return discouraged established enterprises. As a result business depression spread and still continues.

And as a further result the American people, whose common sense is generally equal to detecting causes, rendered a political decision in which the significant figures quoted above form but one count.
